What I'm reading

An older title from the collection: Hominids by Robert J Sawyer (2002).

What happens if there are parallel universes? Can we travel between? What are the differences between the universes? In this novel, Sawyer explores these sci-fi theories. While the story was interesting and I wanted to know about the characters, I found this book particularly interesting because of the location—The Sudbury Neutrino Observatory. Where most authors try to make the setting Anywhere, America—Sawyer is unabashedly Canadian and sets his book in Sudbury and Toronto with such recognizable landscapes.

Inclement Weather

While the CMLibraries will try to stay open regardless of weather, the safety of staff is always taken into consideration.

If the CMLibraries closes due to bad weather, we will publish it on our website, on Facebook and we will change our phone message.
